

During the course of this project, my understanding of what recursion is, and how to effectively utilize it, expanded greatly. I feel like I can now follow the flow of logic through a recursive function. I definitely needed better time management for this project. I was caught off guard with how different this program was from others we've done in the past, and how little I understood how the program should work. I should have taken the time to reach out to Ninjas earlier in the project to give myself a good idea of the program's structure moving forward.
